Great Expectations

PSALM 130

PERSONAL DEVOTIONAL

The city of Jerusalem is situated on a high hill. The Songs of Ascent (Psalms 120-134) were sung by Jews traveling from their homes to Jerusalem on the "ascent," or the uphill road to the city, for one of the three main annual Jewish festivals.

Read Psalm 130.

1. What would you say you tend to hope for at this time of year?

2. In the fullness of time God sent Jesus to meet our greatest need (Gal 4:4-5). How does God's time seem to you as you wait on Him? How do these Scriptures encourage you?

Romans 5:6

2 Corinthians 6:2

Galatians 6:9

1 Timothy 2:6, 6:15

1 Peter 5:6

Titus 1:3

3. What gifts from Jesus is the Christian able to unwrap? List as many as you can. How can you 'unwrap' these daily to remind yourself of His forgiveness, love and provision? (See also 1 John 1:9, Psalm 84:11 and Lamentations 3:22-23.)

4. Martin Luther called this psalm one of the Pauline psalms because it reflects the New Testament teaching of the apostle Paul—that we receive God's grace not by works but through faith alone. What insights into this psalm does his comment give you?

5. How has this sermon reminded you that God hears your prayers of dependence on Him, and will answer them in His time? Do you anticipate that He will reveal Himself to you?

6. Read the quote below.

"At a time of deep failure in my life, well-meaning Christian friends challenged me to claim God's promise of forgiveness (1 Jn 1:9) and move on. I was not so quick to jump from forgiveness to restoration. Instead, I waited. I certainly knew God's promises and I had humbly and fully confessed my sin to God and to those injured by it, but I still waited for several weeks. I waited to hear from God. The believing poet who wrote Psalm 130 knew what that was like. He was confident of God's grace and forgiveness—"with you there is forgiveness" (v. 4)—but, while he knows that great truth, he also waits to hear from God. He waits for God to speak words of grace into his heart and mind. He waits for God to act in his life to bring some level of assurance and encouragement and healing. It's one thing to know God's promises in our minds; it's something else to experience the guilt being lifted from our hearts. The confidence we have is that God will always come through. It is God's nature to be compassionate and merciful. It's the way God is. After we are honest and repentant in confessing sin, we will also sense God's forgiveness as the heavy weight of wrong is lifted. We will sense God's arms of love embracing us like the welcoming father (Is 49:15; 66:13) embraced the son who returned from his rebellion and waywardness. There's no doubt or fear that God won't accept us. But sometimes the working out of God's promises into the reality of our experience comes only after we wait for a while in His presence. 'I wait for the LORD, my soul waits, and in His word I hope' (v. 5)."
—Warren Wiersbe

Have you waited quietly in God's presence lately? Listened carefully for His voice in your heart and the affirmation of His love in your spirit? It doesn't require a mountain retreat or a monastery's isolation. The quiet corner of a bedroom will work just fine—or a park bench or even a car parked in a busy city lot. God is there. Forgiveness and hope are in His hand. He may just be waiting for a quiet moment in which to speak.

Take some time to meditate on Psalm 130 throughout the coming week, reflecting on God's forgiveness for you, the hope you have for the future, and how these can influence the way you relate to others this season.
